Visualizing Social and Political Data
Presentations of Student Portfolios of Exploratory Research
Wednesday, May 5 in DeBartolo 210

The students of the College Seminar “Visualizing Politics” have been using data and graphics to explore a wide variety of topics. The public is invited to these sessions at which they will present their findings with well-designed visual displays that are colorful and often animated or interactive.

Session I. 1:45-3:45
Bobby Rauch: Graphical History of the American Civil War
Morgan Pino: Global Democracy and the Democratic Peace
Sean Grady: Tracking Casualties in Afghanistan
Ben Stoddard: Taxation, Protest, and Crime Rates
Ana Bondoc: Immigration Patterns in Southern California
Danielle Filgueira: The Different Treatment of Cuban & Haitian Refugees
Maguire Padley: Media Conglomeration and News Homogenization

Session II. 4:15-6:15
Timothy Parks: Beer & Circus: The Impact of Wins on College Football Revenue
Dondi Ellis: Corrections Spending and the Quality of Life in Prison
Danny Stagl: Disparities in Health Insurance Coverage in the U.S.
Kim Plemel: The Future of Generation Y
Kyle Clark: JFK: Worthy of His Rankings?
Chrissy Dombroski: European Liberalism and Industrialization, 1900-1990
Josh Bartrom: The Surging Usage of Social Networking Sites

For further information, contact Prof. Michael Coppedge: coppedge.1@nd.edu or 1-7036.